7.2 Intellectual Property and Ownership

PressReader Products and Services contain copyrighted material, trade marks and other proprietary information. Without limiting the scope of PressReader's intellectual property rights, Client acknowledges that PressReader and/or its licensors own intellectual property rights in (i) the content included within the Publications; (ii) the PressReader Products and Services, the content contained within them; (iii) the selection, coordination, and arrangement of the PressReader Products and Services websites, software and mobile applications and the Publications contained within them; and (iv) the trade marks used in connection with the PressReader Products and Services. Publications available with the PressReader Products and Services are for use designated in subsequent Agreements with third parties and may not be modified, reverse engineered, redistributed, sold, publicly displayed, licensed, rented, or otherwise provided to a third party outside of the scope of subsequent agreement or commercially exploited. PressReader does not grant Client any licences express or implied, to the intellectual property of PressReader or PressReader publishing partners except as expressly authorised in this Agreement.
